WOMEN'S MINISTRY

Women's ministries can be an entry point into the church for many women. As a ministry leader you can prayerfully and respectfully seek to bring all the women of the church together to develop a holistic ministry for women, that brings glory and honor to God, and equips them to live out the call of God on their life. You will find basic and next level steps to developing a holistic ministry in this resource. If you have questions or would like a personal consultation, please contact Pat Ingram at 800.264.1225 ext. 292 or pingram@alsbom.org.

Women's Ministry Enriches the Church

- Women's Ministry can be an entry point into the church.
- Women grow in their relationship with the Lord.
- Women's Ministry provides fellowship, accountability and unity that brings the touch of the Lord to the lives of women enmeshed in busyness.
- Women are encouraged to discover their spiritual gifts and find places to use their gifts.
- Women's Ministry equips women to teach and serve, prepares them to make biblical choices for daily life and teaches and encourages women to pray.
- Women's Ministry helps women to develop their nurturing role in the family.
- Women receive understanding and guidance in times of crisis and need.
- Women's Ministry is an outreach to the community, because women who are growing spiritually are excited and they invite their un-churched friends and neighbors.
- Women's Ministry builds and strengthens relationships and therefore promotes unity within the church.
- Women's Ministry can help connect women in the life of the church and foster meaningful relationships.
- Women's Ministry equips women to serve in other areas of the church.
- Women's Ministry promotes evangelism as women invite others to special events, Bible studies, and celebration experiences.
- Women's Ministry crosses generational distinctions and promotes understanding and woman to woman mentoring.

Develop a Holistic and Multi-Generational Ministry for Women

- Prayer is the foundation as you begin the process of blending. Prayer should be the key component in all ministries and especially when we make ministry changes.
- Respect is a key element for all generations. It is foundational to successfully blending into one complete ministry for women. Showing respect for one another's contributions and ideas is essential.
- Include representation from Women on Mission and Women's Ministry groups on your leadership team. Ensure that all age groups of women in your church are represented.
- Plan multi-generational Bible studies, ministry projects, and special events. Our society has become fragmented by ever increasing change and cultural shifts. Often people are segmented in our churches based on age ranges or life stages. While this may work for some ministries, there should be a place where women of all ages and life stages can come together to encourage, support, and learn together. This is a natural way for mentoring to occur around the things you are already doing.
- Plan mission projects that include all women. Make sure the planning team has a representative from all groups.
- Blend your publicity into one piece for all women's events, projects, meetings, and activities; one brochure, one web site and one newsletter.
- While you will still plan events for specific groups or ages of women, remember to plan some events that include all women from children through senior adults.

Evaluate Your Ministry

Why Evaluate:

- Evaluation helps you stay focused on your purposes and goals.
- Evaluation will help you and your team plan for next year.
- Evaluation will remind you to follow-up on events or activities with thank you cards or other appropriate responses.
- Evaluation will reveal things that you should change for upcoming events and activities.

Document your Evaluation for future reference.

1. Which group/groups of women have you traditionally been successful at reaching with existing programs and ministries?
2. What have you offered in the past in your women's ministry?
3. What do you consider are the strengths of your women's groups?
4. What do you consider are the greatest challenges to your ministry?
5. Do you have a purpose statement for your ministry? (Why do we exist)
6. How are your women's events publicized?
7. My church has _____ number of women in the following age groups?
16 to 19 _____ 20 to 30 _____ 40 to 50 _____ 60+ _____
8. My dreams for our women's ministry are?
9. What needs/interests does our survey show?
10. What ministries do we have that meet those needs/interests?
11. What ministries do we need to start to meet the needs and interests of our women?
12. What resources do we need to make our dreams for this ministry become a reality?

Develop a Leadership Team

Why do I need a team?

Church Women's Ministry Director Suggested Job Description

The church Women's Ministry director is responsible for planning, implementing, and evaluating the work of Women's Ministry in the church. Women's Ministry seeks to EQUIP women to enrich the lives of other women and their families through Christ, to ENABLE a woman to discover her God-given gifts for ministry, to search out the needs in her church and community, and match those needs with her gift of service, and to LEAD women to become women of deep prayer, and to become women who study the Bible and base their entire lives on the Word of God.

These things can be accomplished through Bible studies, prayer groups, special interest groups, support groups, special events, conferences and retreats and hands-on missions and ministry projects. The specific responsibilities of the church Women's Ministry Director are to:

- Contribute to the overall ministry of the church within church guidelines.
- Develop a leadership team whose purpose is to determine needs of the women of the church, set goals for the ministry, and to coordinate the ministry with the work of the church.
- Guide the leadership team in setting goals for the Women's Ministry.
- Relate to the pastor and other church staff members and work within the guidelines of the church.
- Develop and maintain an annual budget and calendar for Women's Ministry in the church in conjunction with those of the church.
- Determine the ministries needed to meet the needs of the women of the church and the Women's Ministry goals.
- Develop and design necessary publicity and promotional materials or recruit a team member with the skills to do so.
- Research resource materials and Bible study curriculum for the Women's Ministry.
- Plan and implement workshops, retreats, special events, missions & ministry projects and conferences.
- In churches with Women on Mission groups, to coordinate the work of Women's Ministry with that of Women on Mission and to facilitate good relationships and the exchange of ideas between the two ministries.
- Maintain adequate and orderly records and reports of the Women's Ministry.
